MacARTHUR FLIES TO FORMOSA TO CONFER WITH CHIANG KAI-SHEK; DISCUSS CHINA'S ROLL IN AFFAIRS

Believed To Be Mapping Plans to Protect Nationalist China's Bastion Island of Formosa from the Chinese Communists — Visit Means Big Boost in Morale to the Nationalists.

By James Wel

TAIPEI, FORMOSA, July 31—(INS)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Supreme Commander of the United Nations forces in Korea, flew to Formosa today for critical conferences with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

The five-star U. S. commander for the far Pacific and the Nationalist Chinese chief of state immediately began discussions on China's role in the battle against the spread of Communism in Asia.

MacArthur and Chiang were believed to be mapping means to protect Nationalist China's bastion island of Formosa from the Chinese Communists. Chiang's offer to send 33,000 crack troops to fight the Communists in Korea also was believed on the agenda.

Arrival of MacArthur in Taipei for his first meeting with Chiang brought a tremendous boost in morale to the Nationalists, who are making their last stand on Formosa.

MacArthur flew in his personal plane, the "Bataan," with a group of top ranking officers. Chiang, Madame Chiang and other Chinese officials were on hand to greet him when the plane landed at Sung Shan airport near Taipei at 1:04 p. m. (11:04 p. m. Sunday EDT).

The supreme commander of United Nations forces in Korea immediately went to Chiang's mountain resort at Taosman, above Formosa's capital, for luncheon and high level conferences with nationalistic officials.

Following lunch MacArthur and Chiang conferred alone. Further conferences were scheduled with Chinese military and political leaders tonight and tomorrow.

Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo was due to arrive in Taipei from Washington early Tuesday and is expected to confer with MacArthur who promised to hold a news conference on Tuesday.

There are no records to indicate by whom the Sunday school was organized, but it is known that the school had an enrollment of 55. Among the first teachers were Theodore Michener, Levi Nash, George Roberts, Samuel Wismer, Elwood Kepler, Mrs. Sophie Kepler, Mrs. Roberts and Huldah Kline, the latter in charge of the infant department.

Joseph Houze, a former Mayor of Clearwater, Fla., who has been spending several weeks at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris, Blooming Glen, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Perkase Rotary Club, Thursday evening.

WAR POTENTIAL OF PENNSYLVANIA IS GEARED TO HURL ITS MIGHT AGAINST THE ENEMY SHOULD THERE BE A FULL-SCALE WAR

Following is the first of two exclusive stories on Pennsylvania's role again as the "Arsenal of Democracy."

By Ed Hawek

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, July 31—(INS)—The war potential of Pennsylvania today is geared to hurl its might against the enemy should the Korean campaign flare into full scale war.

From its wealth of manpower, industry and agriculture, the Keystone State again is ready to assume its World War II title—"The Arsenal of America."

During the last conflict, millions of Pennsylvanians threw themselves into an all-out effort, pouring the State's vast resources into the giant Allied war machine.

It is no military secret that sealed orders at this moment are in safes of hundreds of executives throughout the State, which at President Truman's word, would throw their plants immediately into war production.

Records show that more than 20 per cent of the nation's war effort stemmed from Pennsylvania where more than 4,000,000 persons were engaged in war work. A million

OLDEST ALUMNUS OF UNIVERSITY OF PENNA. ENJOYING LIFE TO THE FULL AT HER HOME IN LANGHORNE; LIVED HERE AT ONE TIME

LANGHORNE, July 31—Manifesting an alertness of mind and an interest in world affairs of 1950 that bely her 91 years, the oldest alumnus of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, is enjoying life to the full at her Maple avenue home.

She is Mrs. Francis H. Easby, who as Miss Gertrude Peirce was one of the first two young women to be permitted entrance to the halls of learning at that university, her major being chemistry. Her appreciation of the arts and sciences, and her pleasure in the social life about her, is readily manifest in conversation. The many facets of her well-rounded life have provided an appreciation of the humorous and down-to-earth things, as well as of those on an academic plane. She was thrilled by the fact that a visit of the emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro, and the empress, to the university during the centennial year led indirectly to her admittance to the University; and 76 years later—in 1950—she was equally thrilled when the words "Easby—Easby—Easby" rang upon her ears as young men from the university thus ended a cheer in her honor as she rode in the Alumni Day caravan this spring.

The one who can recall many difficult chemical terms, nearly three quarters of a century after she was making use of them in her daily work, amazes family and friends by her versatility. She is a real "home-body" as she sits in her favorite rocker, knitting sweaters for the American Friends Service Committee (ten which she has knit in the past year are keeping that many individuals warm around the globe); she shows a social side which brings her much pleasure as she makes a fourth at bridge (adding "I'm very fond of bridge, and I feel that the mental exercise is good for one's mind"); and her chief interest, her family, comes to the fore quite often in her thoughts, and she speaks of her descendants down to the third generation.

When Mrs. Easby was visited by a Courier reporter at her home, 201 West Maple avenue, the plea of the U. of P. alumnus was "Please write discreetly about me. I'm aware of so many other things going on in the world, and so full of them, things of much more importance than I—the trouble in Korea for instance!" But so amazing did the one interviewed prove to be that it seems that the young folks of this age can well take lessons from her in how to grow old gracefully, and how to enjoy life.

There is scarcely a turn that a conversation takes but what brings from Mrs. Easby a manifestation of interest from some angle. As her brow puckered when she mentioned

INVOKE MEASURES AGAINST SABOTAGE

President Truman Warns Americans of The Spy Peril

SEEK ATOMIC SECRETS

New stringent measures against sabotage and espionage are being invoked or weighed by U. S. authorities in the present war-tense period. President Truman has warned of the spy peril and urged all Americans to be on the lookout. Most notorious and perhaps most typical of the kinds of spies with which American authorities must now deal — are those seeking our atomic secrets. Four native Americans, Edward to be key members of a Soviet spy ring, have recently been arrested by the FBI. More arrests are expected. How these alleged members of "treason inc." operated, how they lived outwardly hum-drum lives, may give a clue to where to look for the next danger spot in American security. This is the first of four articles.

TREASON, INC. CHAPTER I

By Malcolm Johnson

INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 31—(INS)—

A spreading network of spies in the service of Russia, including native Americans, is working secretly and silently against the United States today.

President Truman has emphasized the danger, urging all loyal Americans to be on the alert against subversive elements determined to sabotage the fight against communism.

Who are these men of treason? Judging from the type already under arrest, they are just plain, ordinary citizens.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, July 31—To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, at the hour of three on Saturday in St. Charles' R. C. White brocaded satin was the choice of the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. State Police Say . . .

You wouldn't drive past a police officer motioning you to slow down, would you? . . . Of course not, for you know he has the force of the law behind him. We would like to point out that traffic signs, signals and marking should command the same attention and respect from drivers that an officer does. For such warnings—just like policemen—are there for your protection. They are SIGNS OF LIFE. Heed them!

FIVE TRUCKS AND GARAGE DAMAGED BY BLAZE AT STATES TRUCKING CO.; ESTIMATE DAMAGE AT ABOUT $3500

Trucks Damaged Were Inside the Garage, the Roof of Which Was Damaged — Origin of Blaze Not Determined — Three Fire Companies Fight the Fire

EDDINGTON, July 31—A fire of undetermined origin broke out in a large truck garage of the States Trucking Co., on Hulmeville road above Park avenue, last night, damaging five trucks and scorching the garage roof.

Firemen from the Cornwells Co., No. 1, Eddington and Union companies, had the fire under control within 15 minutes after the alarm was sent in at about 9.45 p. m.

The 50x100-foot garage was considerably damaged last September when a gasoline truck caught fire while unloading.

Last night's call was sent in by an unidentified passerby. The employees of the company were attending a picnic yesterday and no one was at the garage.

Four trucks were inside the garage when the fire broke out, and another was outside the door. Three of the trucks were considerably burned, while the other two were only slightly damaged. Damage to the trucks is estimated at about $1500.

The metal roof of the garage was burned to the extent of about $2000 damages.

The garage is used also as a maintenance shop. Two smaller garages used to house automobiles are attached at the other end of the structure. This was the end that was considerably damaged in the fire last September.

A company official said that last night's fire probably broke out in the oil room. No merchandise was lost.

The Bucks County Rescue Squad was at the scene with floodlights and an ambulance. No one was injured.

Alcoholics Anonymous Enjoy Fine Banquet

Approximately 90 people gathered in the guild house of Zion Lutheran Church, Jefferson avenue, Saturday evening at 6:30, to partake of an informal dinner held by members of the Bristol Group of Alcoholics Anonymous.

The dinner was prepared and served by women of the Lutheran League of the church, and consisted of the following menu: Roast young turkey with giblet sauce, mashed potatoes, cole slaw, Harvard beets, corn-off-the-cob, pickles, olives, celery, home-made fancy cookies, ice cream, coffee and mints.

The master of ceremonies of the local group of the A. A. called upon the Rev. Paul H. Gleichman, pastor of the church, to invoke the blessing. After partaking of the delicious repast, a local physician who has made a study of the disease of alcoholism and administered helpful medical treatment to alcoholics in their fight to arrest the disease, praised the members of the branch for their wonderful comradeship and helpful interest in each other.

The next speaker was a young woman from a Philadelphia group who spoke of her experiences as an alcoholic, and whose narration of her "come-back" to sobriety was given in the hope of helping other alcoholics.

The main speaker of the evening was a man connected with the Saul Alcoholics Clinic of Philadelphia. His talk, of 30 minutes' duration, was his interpretation of the 12 suggested steps of the Alcoholics Anonymous program. He was roundly applauded at the conclusion of his discourse.

After thanking the speakers, and also the members of the Lutheran League for the most enjoyable menu, the master of ceremonies called upon the Rev. Gleichman to lead the assemblage in the reciting of the Lord's Prayer.

KING-SIZE BAZOOKA

It has been proven in Korea that a new weapon of war need not be some awesome contraption of vast destructive effect. The new "king-size bazooka" now being used by the U. S. Army in Korea seems just right for doing what it was meant to do. The 3.5 inch "ground rocket launcher" that has succeeded in knocking out red tanks packs a wallop out of all proportion to its weight. One man can carry it. There is no recoil at all.

Those were discouraging early reports about the extra-big enemy tanks from which the heavier machine-gun bullets "bounced like ping-pong balls." The tanks were getting through, almost at will despite strafing and bombing from the air. It is still best to stop tanks that way if possible, or by artillery fire.

But at small-arms range there's often a desperate need to put a tank out of action. With one of these new improvements on the World War II bazooka a man or two men can deliver the smashing blow of a large and heavy field piece.

There is not much weight to the weapon because a light tube is about all it is. There is no recoil or kick because the rocket-type projectile blows its gases back against the air instead of a solid breech-block. A bazooka-gunner just keeps out of the way of the backward swoosh of hot gases. The very same gases keep right on pushing the projectile after it leaves the muzzle of the tube.

One dispatch says the new bazookas left the United States only a few days before they were put to use against red tanks. That sort of cargo deserves the very top priority in military transport planes until the ammunition ships can make delivery across a wide ocean.

SANTA CLAUS IN UNIFORM

President Truman, in his report to the nation, called upon the people to avoid unnecessary spending, to buy nothing not needed, and to make every personal sacrifice necessary that they may be able to meet demands for additional taxes to finance the efforts in behalf of preparedness. But what goes for the people also applies to the government, and in a much larger sense. The government cannot have its cake and eat it.

It has been estimated that one-half the $10,000,000,000 estimated to be needed immediately to step up defense could be taken out of the domestic spending program. This would mean the end of public improvements, social projects, outlays designed for the benefit of special groups, and the expansion of nondefense agencies of the government. It would mean that outlays designed to attract votes must be dropped in behalf of the greater need.

Before the present crisis came the people had been demanding a reduction in government costs. That demand becomes more in-

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Mar. 20, 1902. The Gazette, a weekly news paper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

L. R. Williams of the firm of Peirce & Williams, has rented the Larue residence at the corner of Radcliffe and Washington streets, now occupied by Stanford K. Runyan, and will move there about the middle of April. Mr. and Mrs. Runyan will make their home in Tullytown with Mrs. Runyan's mother, Mrs. Amos B. Headley.

Walter Hartshorne, who was recently honorably discharged from the United States regular army, after having served in Cuba and the Philippines, has secured a position as locomotive fireman on the New York Division of the Reading railroad.

William Winslow, who resides above the Hollow bridge, celebrated the 97th anniversary of his birth on Monday. He was born in Ireland on St. Patrick's day, 1853.

The shad fishers are getting their nets in order for the annual drifts and hauls. Before the month is out shad and herring will undoubtedly be in the market.

Owing to a leak in the boilers at the power house, the Otter street trolley has not been in operation since last Saturday.

The annual banquet and ball of Division No. 1, A.O.H., was held in A.O.H. hall on Corson street on Monday evening last, and all the members were present to take part in the festivities. Among some of the talent were the following: Frank F. Lake, the sweet tenor soloist; Edward Gallagher, song containing hits on the members; Edward McElroy, comic solo; Patrick Fallon and wife, song and dance; Miss Mamie Harkins, of Philadelphia, who made a great hit with her con song, entitled "Honey in Your Own Back Yard"; Edward Ennis and wife also made a stir by singing a comic song. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson McElroy, accompanied by Edward Gallagher, made the hit of the evening by singing their latest sketch "Come One, Come All to Our Next."

Mrs. Deborah King, the oldest inhabitant of Ohio, died on the 11th instant, aged 106 years, at the home of her son at Young Hickory, near Zanesville, Ohio. She was born in Bucks County September 30, 1796. When a girl she was engaged to John King of Pennsylvania, O., but waited 49 years for him, as her invalid mother and brothers and sisters needed her. The agreement was kept and the couple married when she was 66 years old. When 78 years old she rode a spirited horse for 20 miles without fatigue.

NEWPORTVILLE—Our new supervisor, C. T. Headley, is at work on the roads.

TULLYTOWN—Capt. William Lovett, of the Burton fishery, is making active preparations for the coming shad and herring season. He will, this spring, manage the Badger fishery, further down the river. Sharp Wharton has built a number of new barges for Capt. Lovett, preparatory to the expected enlargement of the business. Capt. Lovett has been one of the most successful shad fishers on the upper Delaware, having followed the calling all his life.

A new town wharf is in course of construction at Burlington and will be completed in about two weeks. The old wharf which has served as shelter for many years has been torn down and a new one is being erected in its place. Another improvement will be new slips so arranged as to rise and fall with the tide.

The coming season promises to be a record breaker for steamboat travel between Trenton and Philadelphia. Already the Delaware River Navigation Company is making preparations to meet what they think will be the greatest year in the history of navigation on the upper Delaware, says the Trenton True American.

Each company will place on the water two new boats. The Delaware River Navigation Company's new craft, it is said, will be the most handsome and best appointed boats that ever plied between this and the Quaker city. The boats will be of the side wheel type.

The Wilmington Company will lengthen the "Quaker City," which ran last year some 25 feet, and will replace the ill-fated "City of Trenton" with two new boats.

Sell Recreation Center Building at New Hope

NEW HOPE, July 31—The Bucks County Playhouse has purchased the building owned by the Recreation Center for the sum of $12,100. The structure adjoins the Playhouse property.

The sum is to be turned over to the new Memorial gymnasium fund drive. The new gymnasium will be erected shortly beside the New Hope-Solebury high school.

Besides buying the Recreation Center property the Playhouse has pledged itself to stage several productions to benefit the gymnasium drive.

At meetings held by local residents and directors of the Solebury-New Hope Community Association, details were discussed for starting the new structure immediately.

It is reliably reported that the gymnasium drive fund now contains nearly $50,000 with additional funds in sight from new drives, unpaid pledges and other sources.

Because of the present increase of military and industrial mobilization in the United States many local residents believe work should start now before manpower and material shortages appear to disrupt present plans.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Quality Vs. Quantity

Washington, July 31. The weight of opinion among those who ought to know, including General Eisenhower, General Marshall, Mr. B. M. Baruch, Secretary of State Acheson, Mr. John Foster Dulles, Mr. David Sarnoff and a good many others, is overwhelmingly in favor of increased appropriations for the "Voice of America" so that it may more effectively counteract the anti-American propaganda with which the Soviets are drenching the world.

Concerning the importance of explaining the American viewpoint and disseminating the facts throughout the world, there is no dispute. Also, there is little dispute that in the past, though a great deal of money has been spent, this has not been well nor skillfully done. We have, it is said, simply not gotten our money's worth out of the "Voice of America." Up to now it has been a feeble and often vague voice, which is a pity but, nevertheless, a fact. Though not so intended, in effect, this is the testimony of the distinguished Americans who have appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee considering a resolution to enhance the flow of American information abroad.

And this is the basis for the "great new campaign of truth," which, with Mr. Truman's backing, is about to be launched. According to Assistant Secretary of State Edward W. Barrett, who now heads the "Voice," the purpose is to "slap down Soviet misstatements and put America's case before friends, neutrals and antagonists." Spokesman in the Senate for this campaign and author of the resolution is Senator William Benton, of Connecticut. Two things will be recalled about Mr. Benton. One is that he was a partner of Gov. Chester Bowles in the advertising business; the other, that as an Assistant Secretary of State he was the head of the "Voice" for several years prior to his appointment as senator. Under the pending resolution Senator Benton announces he would "expand the 'Voice of America' fivefold."

Certainly, with the approximately $100,000,000 additional which is being asked for the "Voice," it can be very greatly expanded. And the plans of Senator Benton and Mr. Barrett will vastly increase its size and scope. There seems no real opposition to this. On the contrary, the expansion idea is endorsed not only by the above-mentioned eminent individuals but is favorably regarded by most of the newspapers of the country. In brief, there is general recognition of the inadequacy of our propaganda machine and a very widespread sentiment favoring expansion.

However, there is another side to this. For example, there are those who insist that what the "Voice" really needs is improved quality rather than increased quantity. The effectiveness of our propaganda cannot be judged by its volume. The real yardstick is the character of the personnel. Unless it is manned by the right men, multiplying it fivefold will merely multiply its confusion and futility. Without particular criticism of Mr. Barrett, it is difficult to deny that American propaganda in the past has not been fortunate in the men who directed and produced it. Some of the most eminent among the current advocates of expansion privately do not hesitate to express this view.

Few will contend that during the war, the Office of War Information under Mr. Elmer Davis functioned satisfactorily. Undoubtedly, Mr. Davis did the best he could but there were incidents that made it appear he did not know clearly the difference between American propaganda and favorable publicity for the Roosevelt New Deal of which he was an ardent admirer. The same thing could be said of his most active aides. In those days the OWI personnel was certainly nothing to cheer about. After the war, when several thousand of its third-rate pay-roll boys were bodily transferred to the State Department, the level there was distinctly lowered. Later, under the advertising technique of Mr. Benton, the "Voice" seemed more vigorous but the results were no better.

Now, under Mr. Barrett there is no charge of partisanship or political flavor to the propaganda. The only allegation is that the output is factual but dull—to the point of being a bore. Recently Mr. David Lawrence asserted that the "Voice of America" reads "like a press association report of 30 years ago—stodgy, wordy and without terseness or snap." No American newspaper or magazine would print anything like it, and it is difficult to believe that the "average man" in Russia or anywhere else abroad, even if the report reaches him, could be induced to read it. Couple its drabness with the fact that the Administration is not too clear about the policies it wants broadcast to the world, and its futility is easy to understand. None of this is intended to mean that more money should not be given the "Voice" to expand. It does mean that more money is by no means the whole answer. It does mean that quality is more important than quantity and that with more money the obligation to improve the quality becomes imperative.

may be their last peacetime summer training with Pennsylvania's famed 28th Division.

The 28th, commanded by Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler, was selected several years ago by the Defense Department as one of the five elite National Guard Divisions. This means the "bucket of blood" division soon may be tapped for federal service in view of the cry for an expanded army.

The huge military training grounds also may soon be called to contribute as it did before. With a bigger army, more training sites will be re-activated.

Adj. Gen. Frank A. Weber told State Civilian Defense leaders last week that Indiantown can be ready within 12 hours to accommodate 20,000 troops. In the last war the Gap housed as high as 30,000 soldiers.

In addition to Indiantown, a score of other military installations in Pennsylvania can be used again, according to military affairs officials.

The Army is turning historic Carlisle Barracks into the Army War College where top officers are schooled to strategic and tactical problems. The War College is being moved from Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., to Carlisle.

New Cumberland general depot which processed more than 1,000,000 men in World War II is coming alive again as a center for draftees from central Pennsylvania.

the trouble in Korea, there was brought to her mind the question of the correct pronunciation of the name of that country, and she expressed the thought "we Americans make such a broad accent of vowels."

Born Gertrude Peirce, the daughter of Dr. C. N. Peirce a dentist who was dean of the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery, Philadelphia, she displayed an interest in chemistry while in her teens. The desire was expressed to study chemistry at the university, but in that day and age such was almost unthinkable. For one thing the U. of P. had, until that time, had no young women students. The same desire was in the heart of Miss Anna L. Flanigan. The two applied as chemistry students under Dr. Frederick A. Genth, but without much hope that the dream would come true. But, in that centennial year, the trustees were elated when word was received that the emperor and empress of Brazil would visit the university as guests of the said trustees. Dr. Genth, mindful of the psychological moment, approached the trustees relative to accepting two young women as chemistry students, and in their delight at the prospect of visit from royalty they quickly ended Dr. Genth's questioning with "Anything you please."

Upon completing her course in the class of 1878, the one who was later to become Mrs. Easby was employed by her dentist father for one year. As the result of some of her research work, she and her father were delighted to find that financial returns from the project were the equivalent of her college expenses.

Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith, who later was to become provost of the University of Pennsylvania, gave the localite equal credit, along with himself, for a paper on "Ortho-Nitration of Meta-Chlor Salicylic Acid," and which was read by Dr. Smith at a chemical society meeting.

On the occasion of Alumni Day, last June 17th, Mrs. Easby rode in a car with Althea Hottel, dean of women at the University, the car bearing an "1878" banner. "As we rode in the parade, throughout the campus and parts of West Philadelphia, I heard my name shouted—'Easby, Easby, Easby,' and there stood some of the young men students of the university giving me one of their cheers. I was so thrilled," she added.

Mrs. Easby is the mother of Dr. Charlotte Grave, the executive vice president of The Woods School; and mother of Colonel John Peirce Easby, of Fort Belvoir, Va. She has two grandchildren and one great grandson. It is not strange that the localite is so alert and keyed to world affairs at the advanced age of 91, for her mother lived to be 94, and her paternal grandfather reached the age of 96. Mrs. Easby, who came here one year ago from Philadelphia, where she spent most of her life-time, had spent a brief period in Bristol many years ago. She was a cousin of the late William C. Peirce, Bristol, and niece of the late Charles W. and Joshua Peirce, of the Livingstone Mills, Bristol, operated as a felt manufactory several decades ago.

Travel has had its place in Mrs. Easby's life. "I had three years of extensive travel," she commented as she recalled pleasant times on a trip by train across the continent, with return through the Panama canal, also two European trips. It was in 1935, or at the age of 76, that she made her trip to the coast and home via Panama.

Believing that what is done should be done well, Mrs. Easby is at times troubled about the penmanship of the young folks today. But, on the other hand, she is amazed that the women are able to appear so much younger than they really are. "Really, it amazes me at times, when I learn that certain individuals are 19 or 29 years older than I had thought." But she loses sight of the fact that she, herself, appears years younger than 91 mentally and physically. Wearing an attractive pale

Parental Discipline Is Not Contrary to Democracy

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

THOSE who have been reading this column for years know that I emphasize two matters rarely emphasized by most others who counsel parents, namely, early inhibitions and requirements. Consistently I have maintained that the child should learn, especially in his preschool years, that there are some things he must not do—that he should respect "No" (rarely heard) without doubt; that, moreover, he should learn, typically between the ages six and twelve, that there are some things he must do. Furthermore, I propose basic principles and techniques, summarized in my bulletins, "How Teach To Mean," "NO," "Stubbornness," and "How Teach Child To Help at Home."

Some writers and advisers of parents incline to interpret any emphasis on restraints and requirements by parents in the home as contrary to democracy. In these days of totalitarian governments in so many areas of the world, authority by one person over another often suggests dictatorship. Therefore, any expression of authority by parents tends to be dubbed as undemocratic.

Rearing of Children
Indeed, the impression often given by certain writers on the rearing of children is that democracy in the home means almost total abandonment of parental authority, that restraints and requirements of youngsters are taboo. Accordingly, the child in the "democratic home" is supposed to be free to do about anything he wants.

But in our democratic operation of government local, state or national, we have laws which consist of prohibitions or requirements or both. How then is our democracy different from a totalitarian state? In our democracy all citizens may have a voice in making the laws by which they are governed. In a totalitarian state, the average citizen has nothing to say about the making of the laws.

Democratic Home

Reasoning by analogy, some observers say that we have a democratic home only when the children help draw up the laws (rules) which are to govern them in this home. And this ideal of democracy is realized to a high degree where children old enough to do so, sit as members of the family council to help plan the ways by which the whole family can live together cooperatively. Yet in our democratic state a person is not permitted to have a voice in making its laws until he has attained a certain age—21 years in most states—and met other requirements such as ability to read and write. The assumption is that a person must attain a certain readiness before he may have full rights and freedom of citizenship. In a totalitarian state, of course, he never can attain such readiness.

In the truly democratic home the child also has rights and freedoms in accordance with his preparation for exercising them. But suppose he has learned no basic restraints before the age of three or four and no requirements by the time he is seven or eight. Would this child have developed such self-control and responsibility as to be fit for nearly complete freedom in the home? In a truly democratic home the growing child gains in freedom and responsibility as he gradually is prepared to have and bear them. But without his learning early adequate restraints and requirements, anarchy soon reigns and the child becomes a dictator and democracy vanishes from the home. More on this tomorrow.

visited clubs in almost every state in the country. He was formerly a director of a large foundry company employing 2,500 persons. For five years Mr. and Mrs. Houze made a tour of the country.

William M. Power, a member of the Doylestown club, was a visitor.

With more than 50 children, grandchildren and friends in attendance, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Nace, of Perkasee, last week celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary at a party given by their children at a bungalow owned by their two sons, Kermit and Harry Nace, at Byram, N. J.

There was no formal program, but the children and some of the adults took part in games and contests.

Mr. and Mrs. Nace, the latter before her marriage on July 23, 1877, Miss Naomi Martin, were wedded at the Martin home in New Britain by the Rev. Newton Fetter.

The bride-groom of 63 years ago conducted a farm in Hilltown township for many years, and for a long time was the keeper at the toll-gate on the Perkasee-Blooming Glen turnpike. He recalls that the one-way toll charge from Perkasee to Blooming Glen was two cents.

the Philadelphia Presbytery, was read to the congregation by Stoner Yantis.

Mr. Erwin then gave an outline of the growth of the church, noting that the first church unit, now the church sanctuary, was built in 1893 at a cost of $3,000. The main Sunday School building was erected in 1903 at a cost of $2500. Mr. Erwin said, and a $10,000 addition in 1927 provided a kitchen and one school-room.

The school superintendent told the church members that the current building program was the first of a series of three steps which will ultimately enlarge the church auditorium. Mr. Erwin then thanked those who had helped in making the plans for the new building and those who had helped raise the more than $14,000 contributed so far.

The Rev. Rodisch then broke the ground for the new building. Bertie Sylvester, vice president of the church board of trustees, also took a spade, as did George Otto, of the Penn Valley Construction Co., who will erect the building.

The benediction was by the Rev. Rodisch.

ence was headlined in Taipei newspaper extras which sold out almost instantly.

Gen. MacArthur was expected to remain at Tsaoshan for at least 24 hours.

MacArthur and Chiang are meeting for the first time although both have played key parts in the fight against Communism in Asia.

Although supreme commander in the far Pacific during World War

II, MacArthur never had jurisdiction over any U. S. troops in China.

Now, however, MacArthur has command responsibility for the defense of Formosa, under the terms of President Truman's order directing the U. S. Seventh Fleet to patrol off the coast and repulse any Communist attempt to invade the island.

MacArthur's headquarters in Tokio announced the flight in a brief bulletin which said:

"Gen. MacArthur, accompanied by several key members of his staff, is in Formosa in connection with his mission of carrying out the instructions of the President of the United States as announced on 27 June, 1950."

St. James' Church is Setting For DeVoe-Wunsch Wedding

St. James Episcopal Church was the setting on Saturday at two o'clock for the ceremony performed by the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector, which united Miss Betty Jane Wunsch, daughter of Mrs. Hilda Wunsch, Main street, Hulmeville, and Mr. Albert Heath DeVoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. DeVoe, 265 Madison street, Mr. Albert Wunsch, Hulmeville, escorted his sister to the altar as Miss Ruth A. Reukauf, Germantown, organist, played a bridal march. Miss Reukauf also accompanied Mrs. John Arena, whose vocal offerings were "The Lord's Prayer," "Because," and "I Love You Truly."

The bride wore a ballerina style dress of white organdy over white tulle, embroidered with white flowers encircling the skirt. The dress had round neckline, pleated bodice, and cap sleeves. The sash encircling the waist was of white tulle. Her illusion veil was of shoulder length; she wore organdy gauntlets and white linen slippers. On her white prayer book rested a lavender orchid.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Dorothy Jane Braunwart, and as bridesmaid, Mrs. Olga Stabile, both of Germantown. Their white ballerina type dresses were patterned like that worn by the bride. The slip, sash, and horsehair tail worn by Miss Braunwart were in turquoise tone, and those worn by Mrs. Stabile in lavender. Each carried a small lavender orchid on a white prayer book. The two had white organdy gauntlets, and slippers were of white linen.

Mr. DeVoe had as his best man, Mr. Samuel VanArtsdalen, Doylestown; and the usher was Mr. James DeVoe, Bristol, a brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Wunsch, mother of the bride, was attired in a dress of navy blue, her accessories being in matching color. Mrs. DeVoe, the bridegroom's mother, wore a toast one dress, and straw-colored accessories. Both wore corsages composed of pink carnations.

The reception was held in St. James' parish house, after which Mr. and Mrs. DeVoe left for a honeymoon at Ocean City, N. J. The bride travelled in a blue and white check voile, her accessories being white. She wore an orchid.

Mrs. DeVoe is a graduate of Langhorne-Middletown high school, and of Germantown Dispensary and Hospital. Her husband graduated from Bristol high school, and from the University of Washington where he received his B. S. degree in forestry. During World War II he served with the U. S. Army in the Mediterranean theatre of operations.

The two will reside with the bride's mother.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Edward C. Kolbo
Pastor
St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Croydon

Christianity is not the religion of a single class, a single nation, or a single race. It is the religion which God intended for the World.

The Bible refers to Christ as "the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the World." It speaks of His sacrifice on the cross as being the payment for all sins "and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole World."

Anyone who reads his Bible will see that the redemption which Christ effected by His substitutionary death embraced every member of the human family.

Christ is the World Redeemer. Any man, regardless of his station in life, if he repents of his sins and turns to Christ for pardon, can be assured of full and free forgiveness.

"For God so loved the World that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." Christianity is, indeed, the only world religion.

VOLTZ RALLIES NOT ENOUGH TO WIN GAME

Despite Voltz-Texaco rallies in the closing frames, the Bustleton A. A. nine defeated the Bristol team yesterday afternoon in a Tri-County League game on the Third Ward field. Final score was 9-8.

The visitors were enjoying a comfortable 8-2 lead until the seventh. The Voltz-Texaco boys scored a run in the seventh and after the invaders counted in the top of the eighth came back with a quartet of runs to reduce the score to 9-7.

In the final session, the boys of "Wally" Oppman almost deadlocked the count. With one gone, Marsh was given a pass. "Sal" Pappaterra caught hold of one of Charlie Mengel's pitches and walloped it to right field for a triple. Pappaterra represented the tying run at third base but neither Charlie Kohler nor Jack Haines could produce anything that could score him.

AGE BOOSTERS

PHILADELPHIA. — (INS) — A Philadelphia physician believes that some day man may live to be 120 years old. Dr. Edward Bortz, former president of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, pointed out that during the past 25 years from 25 to 30 years has been added to the human life span. He added: "We believe that in 10 to 15 years we shall have the answer to hardening of the arteries, stroke and coronary occlusion."

ST. ANN'S TIGHTENS LEAD BY A VICTORY OVER PIRATES HERE

PUNCHY PARAGRAPHS

Veal Sauce
There's spring in this luncheon dish of sliced leftover veal and fruit vegetable sauce. To prepare the zesty sauce combine 1 cup mayonnaise with 1 tablespoon each chopped onion and celery, 2 tablespoons apple and season with 1/4 teaspoon paprika. Allow the sauce to stand for several hours before serving the veal.

Ham, Apricots

Ham and apricots are a colorful duet for these bright days. Here's apricot sauce to serve over ham slices. Cook dried apricots in water until tender. Drain the cooking liquid and combine it with cornstarch paste. Cook until thick and clear. Fold in apricots along with a tablespoon of butter or margarine and serve hot over ham.
